Zach Dorn has held artistic residencies at The Children's Museum and the Brew House in Pittsburgh, PA. Each month he live-streams miniature puppet spectacles from his home studio reaching global audiences. He was a featured performer at The Great Small Works' 2013 Toy Theatre Festival at St. Ann's Warehouse. In 2012, he was awarded Pittsburgh Foundation's Creative Development Grant for his work as a puppeteer and theater director.

His first original full-length puppet show, Bandaïd Boy, premiered in Connecticut Repertory Theater in 2010. Zach Dorn also worked as puppet designer, alongside puppeteer Stefano Brancato, for Seol & Company's premier of Frank Wildhorn's musical, Tears of Heaven.

In 2013 he created and directed the full-length puppet spectacle, Birds of America, at Pittsburgh's New Hazlett Theater.
