Miniature Curiosa has created various projects both in Pittsburgh and beyond. Their most recent spectacle, Birds of America, premiered at Pittsburgh's New Hazlett Theatre in the Fall 2013. During the summer of 2013, they toured the United States to perform their original traveling spectacle, Tonight A Clown Will Travel Time, in seventeen cities. Other works have included The Luna Park Project, an excavation into Pittsburgh's lost electric wonderland, Puppet Photo Booth, a traveling puppet show disguised as a photo booth, and Moris, a miniature spectacle that packs the cosmos into a cubby hole. Miniature Curiosa's work has been supported by The Pittsburgh Foundation, The Sprout Fund, Awesome Pittsburgh, The Pennsylvania Council for the Arts, and The Greater Pittsburgh Arts Council.

Currently, Miniature Curiosa lives out of suitcases as they premiere five new plays in five different cities over the course of 555 days.
